This story is about a puppy named Lucky and her adventures in New York City.

1. Not so Lucky

Chapter One: The New Place

A/N: This idea just popped into my head.

A puppy walked on the streets of New York City, looking for food. Her mother was dog-napped by the pound. She walked into a back alley where she slept in a box. It was a cardboard box the size of a table.

She walked into the cardboard box slowly, remembering the past events when her mother was "dog-napped". "I'll look for food later," the puppy thought to herself, besides she was tired.

She curled up into a little ball and closed her eyes, hoping to dream of hotdogs and french fries. "I wish I had some french fries," was her last thought before falling in a deep sleep.

The next morning was horrible, it was raining. The rain couldn't get through the cardboard box, the puppy was lucky. "I'm lucky!" The puppy yelled, "Wait, Lucky is my new name now!" She exclaimed happily.

But the moment was ruined, Lucky saw a grayish figure walking into the alley, Lucky tried to see who or what it was but, she could only see rain pouring down hard. Lucky walked into the box a little more.

The grayish figure was getting closer, Lucky knew what it was, it was a....

Cliffy! xD I love cliffies! You better hope I update soon :D

2. Help!

Chapter Two:Help!

A/N:Chappy two for Lucky! Enjoy!

Lucky knew what it was, it was a puppy? Lucky stared at it harder, it still had a figure of a puppy.

The puppy walked up to the cardboard box, you could tell he or she was scared and cold. Just then the puppy spoke softly, "Please can I stay with you for just today! It's wet and rainy outside!"

Lucky stared at the puppy and said I guess. The puppy walked in and layed in a corner. Lucky quickly shut the flaps on the box. Soon after Lucky shat the flaps, it got a lot warmer.

"So, are you a girl or boy and what's your name?" Lucky said "Mines Lucky and I'm a girl.". The puppy looked at the ceiling and answerd, "My name is Checkers and I'm a girl too."

Lucky got a bone from out of a stack at the corner of the box. And gave it to Checkers. Checkers said thankyou and started to naw at the bone.

Lucky then took a two hour nap, soon after Lucky was off to sleep, Checkers was too.

A/N:None XD
